

Summer Construction at Armstrong

Lower School Play Structure

New Amphitheater

Dear Armstrong Alumni,

Over the summer Armstrong continued its "Landscape for Learning" campaign -- aimed at creating settings for important parts of the educational program. Earlier efforts included classroom refurbishment, decks for brain breaks and small-group instruction and increasing greenery on campus. Work this summer involved a new lower school play structure, a new middle school lunch area and snack shack, and the addition of an amphitheater for school wide gatherings. This edition of the Armstrong Alumni Newsletter includes pictures of some of the work, but we'd love to show you around in person. Contact us to schedule a visit.

As always, please help us reconnect with any Armstrong alumni by sharing this newsletter with friends and continue to send us news and updates and email contact information at alumni@charlesarmstrong.org

Thank you.

"Pink Bubblicious chewy bubble gum stuck to the bottom of a shoe. The gum is strong. It holds you down, not allowing another step." This is how Armstrong Alumnae, Hannah Fox, described her dyslexia in her personal statement for college admissions, saying "Dyslexia has been my bubble gum, pulling me back when I tried to step forward." But it seems like yanking her foot off that Pink Bubblicious chewing gum actually catapulted Hannah toward the young woman she is today.

Hannah attended Armstrong from sixth to eighth grade after an elementary school experience fraught with tears and frustration.
